

SULZER IS TO CEASE ACTING AS GOVERNOR

NOT TO EXERCISE OFFICIAL FUNCTIONS DURING THE PRESENT TRIAL.

NEW MOTION IS MADE

Counsel for Governor Asks That Three of Articles of Impeachment Be Stricken Out.

[By Associated Press.]

Albany, New York, September 23.—Nearly all the members of the court were in their seats when the crier at the direction of Presiding Judge Cullen sounded the familiar "Hear ye, hear ye!"

"The court having overruled the motion of the respondent," said Judge Cullen, "to dismiss the articles of impeachment on the ground that the assembly had no right to prefer the charges at any extraordinary session, it now becomes incumbent upon the respondent to make answer to the charges."

Judge Herrick, chief counsel for Governor Sulzer, then took the floor. He announced that in view of the fact the court had refused to dismiss the proceedings, the government would renounce its claim to the right to exercise the functions of government pending the termination of the trial.

"When these articles of impeachment were first presented," Judge Herrick said, "the governor was advised that there was doubt about the legality of the proceedings and for that reason he declined to step down from his office. Ever since the recent decision of Supreme Court Justice Hasbrouck ruling that he had not the right to pardon a prisoner he has ceased to exercise any of the functions of his office. Gov. Sulzer will perform no functions of government in the future pending the termination of his trial."

D. Cady Herrick, counsel for Governor Sulzer announced at the outset of today's session of the high court of impeachment that the governor would cease henceforth to exercise the functions of the executive office until the termination of his trial.

When the high court for the trial of impeachment of Governor William Sulzer was called to order today his attorneys were prepared to exhaust the last of their legal ammunition to prevent the story of his alleged misuse of campaign contributions from being told on the witness stand.

Defeated yesterday by a vote of 51 to 10, their motion for a dismissal of the impeachment on the grounds of its unconstitutionality the governor's counsel today offered a motion to strike out the three articles of impeachment filed against him for making false statements of campaign contributions and with the use of funds for speculation in Wall street.

The motion prepared by D. Cady Herrick, who argued that the alleged charges against the governor were not impeachable on the grounds that they occurred before the governor had been sworn into office.

Former Senator Broket appointed to represent the defense in the assembly managers submitted his brief which was made public yesterday and in substance that the act of a candidate for a political office during a campaign and after he had become an office-elect was so intimately connected with the act of holding office as to be inseparable.

The decision of the court on this question, whether affirmative or negative, should decide the matter unless something unforeseen arises. If in the affirmative there will still be five articles of impeachment to which Mr. Sulzer will have to answer, conviction on any one of which may result in removal.

Eugene L. Richards, of the counsel for the managers will make the opening address outlining the evidence to be presented and the testimony will follow immediately.

EXPECT COMPROMISE ON IRISH HOME RULE

Pall Mall Gazette Says Negotiations Are Under Way Between Cabinet and Opposition.

[By Associated Press.]

London, Sept. 23.—The possibility of an attempt to bring about a compromise on the Irish Home Rule question is commented upon by the Pall Mall Gazette today, a unionist newspaper which to-day says: It is able to state that important communications have passed informally between the British cabinet minister and leaders of the opposition. In the meantime Sir Edward Carson, leader of the Irish unionist party, has stated on the second week of his Ulster campaign and is delivering speeches which according to the leading Liberals should make him liable to prosecution and for sedition as a member of the privy council.

The business part of the Ulster campaign was entered upon today when the Ulster unionist members of parliament were informed of the plan to be pursued when the Home Rule bill for Ireland should become a law and were also admitted to knowledge of leading issues of the proposed provisional government for the north of Ireland.

CLEVER FORGERS PASS MANY CHECKS

Express Companies Notify Banks of International Swindlers.—Passed Fifty Dollar Traveler Checks.

[By Associated Press.]

Washington, Sept. 23.—Twenty thousand banks in every section of the world have been informed by the United States express company that a band of international swindlers has counterfeited the company's $50 traveler's checks and are passing them wholesale in Europe. Twenty-four of the counterfeit checks issued within a week and cashed at Carlesbad, Ljung and Nice have been received by the company here.

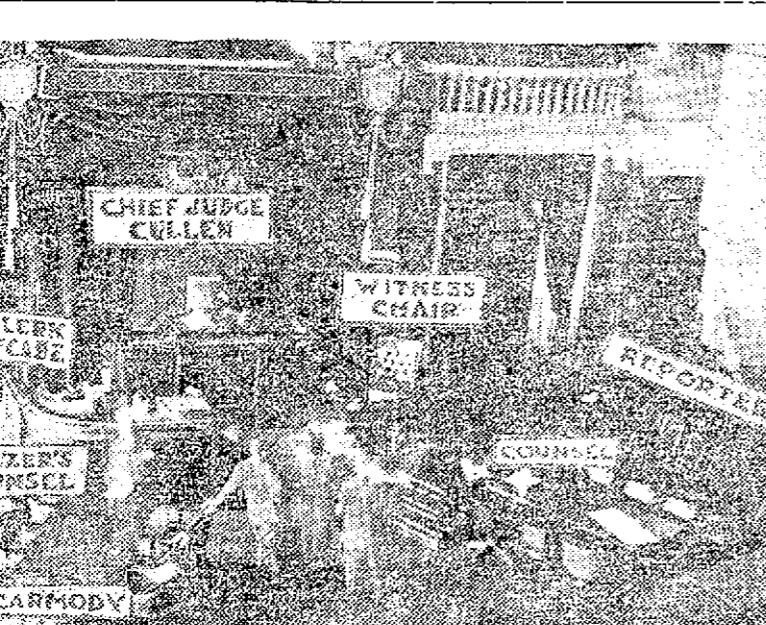

These checks, representing one week's operations are dated August 22 to 29, and were cashed by two men who signed the checks Robert T. McDonald and William T. Riley. A cablegram received today from the Vienna office of Vienna describes one of the men as an elderly man, smooth shaven, of slight figure and flat nosed.

Armed with this description detectives of every European country are seeking the counterfeiter. Checks that may have been issued since August 30 have not yet been received here and the amount involved in the operations subsequent to that date is therefore conjectural.

BODY OF MURDERED MERCHANT IS FOUND

Discovered in Room of Indianapolis Hotel Occupied by Young Man

[By Associated Press.]

Indianapolis, Ind., Sept. 23.—The body of Joseph Schlansky, a merchant, was found late last night in a room of a local hotel, which had been occupied by a young man who registered at W. H. Anderson, Louisville. A strong cord was tied around the merchant's neck and he was shot through the head. Anderson, it is said, was told he was a salesman, called at Schlansky's store yesterday and asked him to go to his room, where he said he had some goods. When the merchant failed to return to his home last night his family notified the police. After having killed the merchant the murderer washed his hands in the lavatory of the room, as the wash basin was filled with bloody water. The merchant's watch and about twenty dollars were taken. The slayer left two notes in which he stated he robbed the merchant and then killed him.

REPULSE ALBANIANS WITH HEAVY LOSSES

Servians Win Victory, Defeating Invaders Between Dibra and Jakova—Albanians Lose 200.

[By Associated Press.]

Vienna, Sept. 23.—In a fierce battle today between the Servians and Albanians on the new Albanian frontier two hundred Albanians were killed and a large number wounded. A dispatch to a local newspaper says: The fight occurred between Dibra and Jakova, where many battles between the Servians and Turks were fought in the Balkan war. The encounter was brought about by an attempt of several thousand Albanians to penetrate the territory acquired by the Servians from the Turks. They were repulsed. The Servian loss was one thousand and a large number of men. They since have been re-inforced.

The Servian fortifications of the town of Dibra, Albania, were captured by a force of 20,000 well-armed Albanians according to a report received here. Servian reinforcements were hastily dispatched to the assistance of the garrison.

TELLS OF FACTORS MAKING WISCONSIN FIRST DAIRY STATE

Dairy Husbandry Expert Recounts Wisconsin's Advancement in Dairy Industry at Refrigeration Society's Meeting.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Chicago, Ill., Sept. 23.—Wisconsin's remarkable development as a butter-making state was the theme of Carl E. Lee, assistant in dairy husbandry, in an address at the convention of the International Association of Refrigeration here today. He made the prediction that from one-fourth to one-fifth of all the butter made in the United States will, in a few years, bear the label, "Made in Wisconsin." He supported this prophecy by enumerating the factors which have contributed and will still contribute to its development.

In 1895, he said, Wisconsin furnished all of the butter made by one-sixth of the nation's population. He has estimated that had the output of the Badger creameries and farm dairies for that year alone been loaded into refrigerator cars, each containing 750 sixty-pound tubs, it would have required a train nineteen miles long to move the vast product to market.

Remarkable Advancement.—"Nothing shows the rapid advancement in dairying in Wisconsin better than to contrast conditions in 1860, when half or more than half of the farms brought their milk and butter to market, with 1911, when the value of Wisconsin's dairy products reached $80,000,000," said Prof. Lee.

The early history of the dairy industry in Wisconsin is the same as that of any other state," he continued. "The farmers preferred to grow small grains and rob the soil of its fertility. Former Governor W. D. Hoard once said, 'what saved Wisconsin from the wave of destruction in farm fertility and land value was the coming of the cow.' Less than fifty years ago, according to Hibbard, a single pound of marketable butter was often worth more in Madison, the site of the state capital and its university, than a bushel of wheat. Yet with such investment, it was entirely possible to turn the production of an acre into 75 pounds of butter instead of eight or ten bushels of wheat and the cash outlay for maintaining the dairy, after it was once started, was not equal to the expense of raising wheat. In spite of these possibilities, and they were thoroughly tested, butter was shipped from other states to Wisconsin even as late as 1860, while for half or more of the farmers to buy butter, cheese, and even milk, was as to excite no comment."

Refrigerator Factor.—"Prof. Lee related how in 1874 Governor Hoard, as a representative of the then newly organized Wisconsin Dairymen's association, was sent to Chicago to look into the transportation of the dairy products. The result of this trip was the introduction of the first refrigerator car into the state to replace the common freight car. With this small beginning, what can be done in the way of transportation of the factory-made butter for 1910 alone required a solid line of refrigerator cars each containing 750 sixty-pound tubs, nineteen miles long, to move it to the markets of the country. All this took place in a period of 35 years.

Without refrigerator cars, Prof. Lee pointed out, it is impossible to transport the products of the dairies during the summer months in as good condition as when they leave the factory. At present the facilities are such that butter can be held in storage from four to eight months without impairing its flavor or quality.

Another factor contributing to the general advance of Wisconsin in dairying, according to Prof. Lee, is the hand separator which makes cream production possible. In the less developed and more thinly settled parts of the state.

Other Agencies Aid.

Agencies responsible for many of the advances made in the dairy industry in Wisconsin are the Wisconsin Dairymen's, Buttermakers', and Cheesemakers' associations, and the state agricultural college. At the latter institution the Babcock milk test, world famous, was worked out and perfected.

Prof. Lee said that the remarkable advance in the manufacture of butter and cheese in Wisconsin has been made possible only because refrigeration of food products has received due consideration.

IMMENSE STYLE SHOW HELD HERE NEXT WEEK

BIGGEST SPECTACLE OF ITS KIND EVER SHOWN IN JANESEVILLE.

$1,000,000 IN DISPLAY

All Branches of the Trade Will Make Special Window and Interior Displays.

Thursday, Friday and Saturday,
October second, third, and fourth, the Janeseville merchants will hold their first combined style show and opening.
Never before in the history of the city have the merchants made such elaborate plans for window and interior displays. All smaller stores carrying merchandise, which is in way affected by changing styles will participate in the exhibition. Every bit of decorating will be done by Janeseville men.

Windows to Blaze Forth.
The windows will be kept lighted until late each night to enable everyone to take advantage of the displays.
Each window will display a card, pennant or other device bearing the inscription "Janeseville Combined Merchants' Fall Style Show and Opening."

Immense Stock Displayed.

Over a $1,000,000 worth of beautiful new fall merchandise will be on display in the various stores. Novelties in jewelry, shoes and in hosiery will attract every eye. The hosiery will speak for itself, for it is to be worn in all shades to match the dresses worn. The predominating shades will be cerise, mell rose, emerald green and taupe. White hose, worn with black shoes, will remain the thing. The gloves shown for street wear will still be the conventional black, white and tan kid.

Dark Shades Popular.

The furniture dealers and interior
decorators will have unusual displays of the finest furniture and drapery, in speaking of the newest ideas in drapes and furniture one of the merchants said: "It is a strange thing that the Chinese shades are used in so many of the drapes and rugs this year. The reason may be that the striking Chinese colors are so beautiful when used upon the extremely dark backgrounds in vogue in all furniture, tapestries and hangings this season. The Flanders oak furniture and the dark background in the tapestries used with the furniture, such as the putty colors and the French grays, make excellent backgrounds
for the Chinese shades; the old blues,
the pueblos colors, etc."

Our country cousins will not be disappointed in the reception they will receive in Janeseville. Every preparation has been completed to look after them.

Exhibition Invaluable.

The merchants in the smaller nearby cities will find the exhibitions to be invaluable for they will have the latest ideas in imported and domestic goods without having to travel very far to secure them. They will also obtain new ideas in window trimming, in ways of displaying merchandise in the stores, in manners of using the merchandise and selling it.

After this style show there will be no excuse for any man or woman in southern Wisconsin to wear apparel that is not of fashion's latest decree. This does not necessarily mean extravagance in dress, as may be imagined. The man and woman of moderate means will find the displays for making their clothes in the latest style with an little, if not less expense than in making clothes that are old-fashioned and homely.

"The quality of the butter when taken out of storage," he said, "has exerted an influence on the yearly
price of butter. This has indirectly encouraged dairying because the yearly advance of one cent in the price paid the producers per pound of butter fat motivates the dairymen of Wisconsin $1,000,000."

According to recent reports by the government, Wisconsin has risen to the first rank among the states of the
union as a dairy state.

This tremendous show will demonstrate beyond all question of doubt the place that Janeseville holds as a merchandising center and the logical shopping center of southern Wisconsin.

"The quality of the butter when
taken out of storage," he said, "has
exerted an influence on the yearly
price of butter. This has indirectly encouraged dairying because the
yearly advance of one cent in the
price paid the producers per pound of
butter fat motivates the dairymen of Wisconsin $1,000,000."

According to recent reports by the government, Wisconsin has risen to the first rank among the states of the
union as a dairy state.

TO MILWAUKEE CHURCHES

Rev. W. W. Moore of Monroe Assigned to Wesley Church to White, Rev. Williams
Was Appointed.

Bishop William Quayle of St. Paul has at last adjusted the changes in the Methodist Episcopal pulpits at Milwaukee, which were necessitated
by the retention of the Rev. S. H.
Anderson as pastor of the Summerfield church. Mr. Anderson was appointed to the Janeseville charge and Mr. Williams was assigned to Wesley church Milwaukee, while Rev.
Perry Millar, former pastor of Wesley church, was assigned to the Janeseville district as superintendent.
With the retention of Mr. Anderson at Summerfield, the Janeseville congregation petitioned and secured the retention of Mr. Williams. Bishop Quayle has now appointed W. W.
Moore of Monroe to take the Wesley church, while C. E. Weed, formerly of Watertown, who was assigned to Summerfield, will take the Monroe pastorate.

A PUBLIC MENACE.

The Madison Democrat, under this caption, discusses a subject that is of vital interest to Janesville as well as Madison. Apparently the same wandering mendicant visited Janesville previous to arriving in the Capital City. As the matter deals directly with the public health and safety of the community it is reprinted below with the suggestion that he city health officer or state authorities take action to prevent its repetition.

"However pathetic the case, it nevertheless is dismounding that an obviously tubercular patient, thin, pallid, anaemic and coughing, should be permitted to mingle with the public of this city, come into contact freely with women, children and men in stores, in offices and on the streets, disseminating freely wherever he goes, the germ of the sore disease afflicting him. There is such a case here today and it has been here for many days. The victim, poor man! goes from store to store, house to house, office to office presenting a subscription paper asking for alms that he may go west for the benefit of his health. Upon this paper are perhaps fifty names, mostly those of sympathetic Madison women. These good women have handled that dangerous document which may be probably is, alive with tubercular germs; and then, who knows, at once fondle their innocent children, possibly imparting to them the beginning of a fatal illness! Not a soul of us but must sympathize profoundly with this man. His situation is most pathetic. He is poor and stricken. Obviously he needs assistance desperately, and there can be none but would be willing to give assistance; but he should not and must not be permitted longer to subject scores, may be hundreds, of people of this community, to the living danger of contracting a dread disease. Most emphatically he is a fit subject for popular attention and Christian care. He should be provided with the means to send him into the most salubrious climate that may be known. That is our duty; yet more certainly is it our duty to protect our families and ourselves from a needless danger."

"This paper has received complaints more than once with respect to this particular menace, and it is time now that the local health authorities, or those of the state, take cognizance of the matter and give it immediate attention.

"One of the astonishing features of this case is that the subscription paper which the unfortunate man carries, now soiled with much handling, has attached to it a letter from a local physician urging the worthiness of the patient and pleading that money be given for his aid. The very fact of this medical endorsement has no doubt blinded many people to the great danger of touching the paper."

HASTE MAKES WASTE.

Over-anxious reformers are insisting that the city administration is not making enough haste in prosecuting the cases that it claims it has on cold storage on certain residents of the city who it alleges have violated the city ordinances. Haste makes waste in every case and it is probably best to take time in prosecuting these cases so there may be no mistaken verdicts which might come from hastily prepared cases. It is safe to say that these cases will be taken in the order they are filed and that in time all will be dealt with.

FALL DAYS.

Officially autumn has begun. Officially it may be stated that autumn began in many households last week when the furnace fires were lighted for the first time. The man who continues to wear his low shoes and summer underwear because it is not officially autumn is now suffering the penalty. Every sign of nature points to a long, cold winter, but it is to be hoped that the fabled Indian summer will not neglect to put in an appearance before the snow begins to fall.

It beats all how ungrateful some people can be. A number of Americans who have been assisted out of Mexico are cursing the government because they didn't want to be saved.

A dispatch from Berlin says a chess player has been frozen to death. Somehow, playing chess and taking care of the furnace don't seem to work well together.

The navy was never in a better condition for war, says Admiral Dewey. It now devolves upon some of the army officers to get up and yell "treason."

All-important detail unaccountably omitted: Whether Secretary Bryan's new eight-dollar made-in-Austria velvet hat has the bow in the back.

More proof of the high cost of living. A Kansas girl has settled a breach-of-promise case for two steers and eight bushels of corn in the ear.

Today the Rockford golfers are guests of the Simeon golf club and the course at the country club is the scene of much activity.

A convention meeting in Buffalo transferred its sessions from a hotel to a cemetery. Can Buffalo hotels be as bad as all that?

It appears that a Chicago man's millions are not sufficient to keep a dancer's feet from twinkling into the primrose path.

That investigation having been completed, the New York, New Haven and Hartford is probably now an ideal railroad.

Great.

It's great to have a million; A feller can stand pat; Or e'en a hundred thousand— A man can live on that. And fifty thousand dollars is not so very bad;

If I could get but thirty I'd be most mighty glad.

I might say that five thousand Would look real swell to me, Or even say twelve hundred, It's not so bad to see.

Five hundred ain't so fancy. Some folks would think it tame: But I would take one hundred And be glad just down to fifty.

Some people call it small, But twenty-five is better.

Then having none at all, Ten dollars, and so many, You say, but man alive, I'll give you my opinion, It's great to have five.

Satisfied.

I'd hate to lie awake and plan To circumvent the Mexican. I'd hate to lose good hours of sleep Evolving schemes to try and keep The friendship of the Japanese. Who seems to be durh hard to please.

I'd hate to have that tariff thing Upon my mind all night, by jing. It's a problem lar past me.

It's a problem lar past me, To keep my party lined up right, To have notes from the powers. Consuming all my waking hours. Whoever would be president Can have the job. I am content.

There is only one way to succeed in life and to pile up a fortune which will keep you from want during your old age.

Is it Worth it?

If the educational effect of the fair is worth what the fair costs then the deficit should be paid without complaint and in this connection it is worth noticing that according to public statements the last state fair of Minnesota resulted in a deficit of $20,000 which the business men of Minneapolis propose to pay on the theory that it is worth what it cost to have the fair held near their city—Green Bay Gazette.

Right to the Point.

But whatever question there may be as to the purpose of the Mann-White Slave, there should be none as to the fact that men of the stamp of Dugan and Capatti should be severely punished. They are entitled to no sympathy. What is really needed is a more direct and effectual method of reaching such cases.

Save your money.

There is nothing like this system. When you are getting $18 a week and your legitimate expenses are $25 and growing heavier all the time on account of the high cost of living, be sure to lay aside a certain amount in the bank every week—Save your money.

According to Uncle Abner, Elmer Jones' red necktie set fire to his shirt front last Sunday and the flames quickly spread to his celluloid collar, which exploded and did much damage before Wide Awake Hose Company arrived. Elmer suffered the loss of his hair and eyebrows. No insurance.

Hank Tumms says nothing keeps him cool in the summer like going down to the bank and striking a Frisby for a loan. Anse him reduce Hank's temperature 30 degrees in two minutes. The last time Hank went nearly contracted pneumonia.

Anse Hilliker can't tell the difference between oomargarine and butter. His reason is that he has been eating in a restaurant for fifteen years and has never had chance.

Hank Tumms claims he got stung by a street corner medicine man the other night. He bought a bottle of medicine for two shillings and he got it with a rubber comb, a pocket knife, six lead pencils, a fountain pen, a package of writing paper, a corkscrew, a deck of playing cards, a hand saw and a copy of Webster's Unabridged Dictionary. The feller promised to throw in a bunch of quill toothpicks, but didn't do it. Hank says you can never trust these travellin' fakers much to give you your money's worth.

THE VALUE OF GOOD TEMPER.

Rectify up your assets.

Health and wealth and family and friends and work and position—if all of these, or a majority of them, are yours, you are a happy man or woman.

Stop a bit! There's another one that is worthy of inclusion in the list. It is good temper.

With his aid or most of the others may be required. Without it they may still be gained, but the process is made unnecessarily long and hard.

How much, then, is your good temper worth to you? How much does its absence cost you?

In New York city the other day a sheriff's jury was called upon to estimate the value of good temper. The case concerned a four-year-old girl who was born with a sweet disposition. She illustrated well the truth of the saying:

"Every household ought to have a continuous supply of three-year-old girl babies."

But alas for the continuance of her charms! A careless person permitted an ash can to slip and strike the child on the head, and as a result her temper was ruined.

From being a "little angel" Mary became "irritable and disobedient," her father said. And he sued for damages. The jury awarded him $100.

Not much, you say? So do others.

To a lay observer not versed in the ways and the intricacies of the law and its methods of estimating the value of personal characteristics it seems that $100 is not much to pay for the spoiling of a disposition.

You and I know cases, do we not, in which parents would be willing to pay many times $100 to have the dispositions of their children altered.

And we all can cite instances in which parents would not accept a pile of $100 bills in exchange for the sweet tempers of their children.

What about grownups? How much is their good temper worth?

How much to themselves and others?

To the business man, the lawyer, the artist, the physician, the newspaper man, to all others who must rub elbows daily with their fellow men and women, good temper is an asset of inestimable value.

A hermit may be able to get along without a sweet temper. But the lack of it, in most cases, is what makes him a hermit.

If you are not a hermit and are afflicted with a "grouch" get rid of it. It is a bad brake on your progress in life.

STATE PRESS.

And the Last is Worst.

The state treasury in New York is nearly empty just like Wisconsin. There, however, it comes from the legislature not passing appropriation bills, here it comes from the legislature passing too many—Milwaukee Sentinel.

Shotgun Reactionaries.

Citizens of Outagamie county have decided to fight the state good roads law rather than levy a tax for road improvements. It is true that shotgun farmers are not friendly to highways, because the travel scares the game away, but we have never supposed that the Outagamie farmers were of that sort.—Superior Telegram.

Despite the recent cold snap the local dealers state that it will have little effect upon the prices of the commodities. William T. Jerome.

William T. Jerome, former district attorney in New York city, is a very busy man these days. Before he was called upon to act as deputy attorney general in the Thaw case he was retained by Governor Sulzer as one of the latter's attorneys in the impeachment trial. Unless the Thaw matter is settled up before the impeachment trial is over, however, it is likely that Jerome will withdraw as one of the Sulzer counsels.

INDIAN FORGETTING TRIBAL CEREMONIES

Haste in Collecting Indian Lore Necessary if Much is Not to Be Lost Says Paul Redin.
[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Madison, Wis., Sept. 23.—"We should make all haste in collecting everything pertaining to Indian legends, traditions, manners and customs, as in twenty-five years this information will be extremely difficult to get," says Paul Redin, the distinguished archeologist and linguist now in the service of the Canadian bureau of ethnology, who was here visiting Curator C. E. Brown of the state historical museum.

"The rising generations of Indians are rapidly forgetting the languages, manners, customs and traditions of their tribes and most of the information of value now can only be obtained from a few old men."

Mr. Redin is now at Black River Falls making a study of the Winnebago Indians, collecting Indian folk legends, and other stories and legends. He made a previous study of the Winnebagoes in Wisconsin and Nebraska covering a period of three years. One of his achievements at that time was the obtaining from an aged Indian of a detailed description of one of the old ceremonial dances which covered several days. It took him eight weeks to get all the details from the narrator, in the course of which time the Indian sang nearly 150 Indian songs into a phonograph. This story, with other data will shortly be published.

Mr. Redin has made similar studies of the Chippewa Indians in Wisconsin and Canada. The coming winter he will be sent to northwestern Canada. Mr. Redin was formerly a citizen of the United States and last winter was sent to Mexico under a combined scholarship of Harvard and Columbia universities to study the Zapotes in dians who, by the way, were one of the strong tribes that assisted Cortez in conquering the Aztecs in 1521.

"Contrary to the general impression the Aztecs are not extinct," says Mr. Redin, "there being about 3,000,000 of them now."

Mr. Redin was obliged to flee from Mexico during the troubles last summer. "What the Mexicans need," says Mr. Redin, "is a strong military government with justice, a division of property and compulsory education. This will solve the Mexican problem, but it will take a long time. So long as a few hundred men own all of the land and the rest of the people are practically peons, there will be trouble and revolution. The business men favor intervention and the peons would not care as they feel their conditions might be worse than at present."

INDIAN UNION LABOR FEDERATION IN SESSION

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Terre Haute, Ind., Sept. 23.—With a larger attendance than ever before in its history the Indiana State Federation of Labor opened its twenty-ninth annual convention here today. The convention will continue through Wednesday and Thursday and intense interest is manifested in the work before it. One of the many matters of interest that will come up for consideration before the convention will be a report on the action of the last state legislature on various bills in which organized labor is especially interested. There will also be many matters concerning the management and activity of the various labor organizations in the state to be discussed. A great deal of interest is also manifested in the election of officers for the ensuing year and there are several tickets in the field.

Oklahoma City, Sept. 23.—Some of the most interesting and sensational features ever offered at a state fair have been promised for the Oklahoma state fair, which opened here today under the most auspicious conditions. The fair will continue until October 4, and there will be many special days and celebrations during that time. Horse races and automobile races will form a conspicuous feature, but there will be no pool selling or betting on the various racing events, although the new anti-betting law does not go into effect until after the close of the fair.

Oklahoma City, Sept. 23.—Some of the most interesting and sensational features ever offered at a state fair have been promised for the Oklahoma state fair, which opened here today under the most auspicious conditions. The fair will continue until October 4, and there will be many special days and celebrations during that time. Horse races and automobile races will form a conspicuous feature, but there will be no pool selling or betting on the various racing events, although the new anti-betting law does not go into effect until after the close of the fair.

The Evening Chit-Chat

BY RUTH CAMERON

MORE SPARKLING STONES.

IT is always a pleasure to watch little children at play even if you only take a surface interest in them as you would in the gambols of a batch of kittens.

It is a still greater pleasure if you care to study them and watch the moods and motives that govern adult life, making their appearance in this miniature world.

On the beach one pleasant morning this summer two youngsters somewhereabout the mystic age of five, were having a grand time in the sand, delightfully unconscious of my shameless eaves dropping.

They had been picking up the shiny pebbles which the retreating tide had left sparkling in that tickle splendor which its damp touch transiently imparts.

Said Tow-head, trotting towards him with his nail full of pebbles, "See my pall, I've got more sparkling stones than you have."

"Have you, though?" said Dutch-cut. "You look here at mine."

A comparison followed, after which, both contestants having pugnaciously claimed the honor, each felt to work again in a frantic endeavor to get the most.

Could there be a more accurate miniature of life?

The pleasure they had in the beautiful little pebbles themselves was small. The real joy came in having "more sparkling stones than you got."

Then Mrs. White shows Mrs. Wilson her new diamond ring. "What a dandy," says Mrs. White, who only has two diamonds and a ruby, with her tantalizing display of four diamonds, an emerald and a sapphire, she is really playing in pantomime. "I've got more sparkling stones than you have."

And when Mrs. White goes home and teases her husband for a new ring for Christmas, she is just displaying the eternal trait that made Tow-head and Dutch-cut scramble after more sparkling stones.

And so it is everywhere. Tow-head's sparkling stones are symbols of all the baubles we hold so dearly. The chief pleasure many people get out of life is in having more possessions, more money, more talent, more beauty, more power than someone else.

I sometimes wish the word "more" could be stricken from the English language. Comparisons are certainly odious. They give only a tainted and unhappy happiness and an unhappiness that is just as keen as if it had a legitimate cause.

There are plenty of people who would enjoy sunsets and the grandeur of the ocean and the wine of an October day very much more if they could only buy them and have more of them than other folks.

It's a queer world, isn't it? Ninety-nine people out of one hundred would have laughed at the youngsters and their scramble to get more sparkling stones than each other. Not one in a hundred ever pauses to laugh at his own scramble for the same goal.

HEART and HOME PROBLEMS

Dear Mrs. Thompson: (1) We are girls fourteen years of age and very much in love with a boy we have never been introduced to. He spoke to us the other day. Should we return his salutation?

(2) Is it fashionable to wear colored hose with black slippers?

(3) Is it proper for girls of our age to receive candy from boys whom we know slightly?

(4) One of us is very much in love with a boy twenty-one years of age. Her mother is dead and she claims it her duty to stay at home until the children are large enough to take care of themselves, which will be in about four years.

Must I wait and give her up? If I find another like her,

You are both young enough to wait a couple of years longer before marrying, though I really see no reason for your not marrying the girl now. Her father can get a housekeeper for his home and he possibly may want to marry again.

If you love her don't give her up.

Show her how necessary she is to you and with her over to your own point of view.

As for the other boys—let her have some friends. If she loves them the other boys are nothing much to her. Besides it's up to you. Will you introduce her over so much and be on the side yourself and make yourself so agreeable to her that nobody else can compare with you?

WILLIE

Is it right for me to withdraw from the social circle because she goes with other boys and I do not like to see it, for I want to be with her myself?

THIMPLED TWINS.

(1) You should not speak to a boy who does not take the trouble to get himself properly introduced to you. He will only think you cheap if you do.

(2) No; hose and slippers should match the gown.

(3) No.

(4) It is not proper, my dear. You are not in love with with him, either, but with the presents he gives you.

(5) He is a good respectable boy friend and it is a friend you can rely on to answer it; but don't be mushy. Remember, boys and girls are never as much in love as they think they are and they are always ashamed of their "calf love" when they are old enough to know better.

(6) Not very well.

(7) Not low enough to show the collarbone.

(8) It is in bad taste. Nice girls don't do it.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I am a man and look out for another girl.

HOUSEHOLD HINTS

THINGS WORTH KNOWING. Furniture Polish—One small cup of white vinegar and one small tablespoonful of olive oil; mix well. Take a piece of woolen goods, dip into mixture, rub over furniture, then polish with cheesecloth rag. Clean and polish.

The ends of candles melted down and mixed with turpentine make a very cheap and good floor polish.

A lump of camphor will keep ants out of your clothes closets.

When a door or a bureau drawer does not run smoothly, rub the edges with dry sand and they will move more easily.

THE TABLE.

Sunday Cakes—Mix a teaspoonful of baking soda with a pound of flour and rub it into a half a pound of warm butter. When quite smooth add three well-beaten eggs, half a pound of currants washed and dried, half a pound of sugar and a few caraway seeds. Mix all thoroughly and bake in a buttered tin.

Stuffed Round Steak Roasted—Select one and one-half or two pounds of round steak, all in one piece. Place it in roaster. Make a dressing as for turkey. Break dry bread into small pieces, moisten it with water, season with salt, pepper and sage to taste. Add one beaten egg and a little butter. Put the dressing on top of meat, fold over and sew ends together with a large darning needle and clean white wrapping yarn. Sprinkle a little salt on top, and put pieces of suet around meat. Cover roaster and roast in oven two to two and one-half hours.

Steamed Brown Bread—Two cupfuls of yellow cornmeal, one cupful of rye meal, one cupful of flour, two cupfuls of molasses, one half of a teaspoonful of baking powder.

Rumford THE WHOLESOME BAKING POWDER Does Not Contain Alum

minced salmon. Separate yolks from whites of eggs. Mix in ordinary sized bowl, yolks of eggs, cream, salt, pepper and half a cup of salmon. Fold in the stiffly beaten whites of eggs. Have a hot, clean omelet pan, generously buttered; pour in the mixture. Spread it evenly over the top and allow it to cook; shake the pan gently to prevent burning. When brown on the inside side, sprinkle over the top the remaining cup of salmon, fold and remove to a platter. Garnish with lettuce and slices of lemon sprinkled with paprika.

Dutch Sauce—One-half teaspoonful of flour, two eggs (yolks only), four table-spoonfuls of butter, two table-spoonfuls of vinegar, two table-spoonfuls of water, juice of one-half lemon, salt to taste. Put all the ingredients excepting the lemon into a stew pan. Set it on the fire, stirring continually until thick and not allowing it to boil. Add lemon juice and serve.

The KITCHEN CABINET

ARCHBISHOP BENSON'S Principles—Not to call attention to crowded work, or petty fatigues, or trivial experiences. To seek no favor, no compassion; to deserve, not to ask for tenderness. To heal wounds which in times past my cruel and callous hands have made. Not to feel any uneasiness when my advice or opinion is not asked, or is set aside.

COLD DESSERTS.

A most delicious frozen dish which will be new to many is the following: Cook together a cup of sour cream and a cup of sugar until it reaches the soft ball stage when tried in water, flavor and add a cup of hickory nut meats and turn it into a quart of rich milk, to which has been added a cup of sugar. Freeze as usual. This is a most delicious dish and worth trying.

Cherry Mousse—To a pint of double cream, add three table-spoonfuls of powdered sugar, a cup of cherry juice and a drop or two of almond extract. Chill and whip until stiff. Turn into a mould, cover closely and pack in ice and salt. Serve in glasses.

Currant Nectar—To a quart of water add two cupfuls of tart currant jelly. Boil until dissolved, then add the juice of three lemons and three oranges. Serve very cold with a slice of orange floating on the top of each portion, and cracked ice to chill it.

Fruit Crown—Pare, core and quarter three sweet apples and three quinces, cover with sweet cider and cook until tender, remove the apples unbroken. Measure the cider and add enough more to make a pint. Over a half box of gelatine pour a half cup of cold cider and soak for half an hour, then add to the hot cider with a half pint of sugar, set in cold water and stir until it begins to thicken, then turn into a border mold tipping the mold so that the jelly will form a lining over it. Now fill with chopped and cooked quinces and apples filling in with jelly. Set on ice until firm, invert on a cold dish and fill the center with whipped cream decorated with browned almonds.

Baked Alaska—Take a brick of ice cream and place it on a sponge cake, cover with a meringue and place in a hot oven to brown quickly. Serve sliced.

WILLIE

Dear Mrs. Thompson: Another boy went home with my girl the other night. She never acted nice with me before. What would you advise me to do?

F. E. B.

Ask the girl if you have offended her in any way. If you haven't just make up your mind she's tired of you.

What division of time?

CONDUCTED BY

Mrs. Alice Gitchell Kirk

others, but if there is some desire to make a pretty, attractive looking table in the decoration and setting there are very few who cannot do it very much better than they do it at the present time. It is called "an art" by some, but always keep in mind comfort and perfect convenience with this art, which should never be for art's sake, but for itself.

It is not so much what is put on the table, such as fine dishes, linen and silver, as how it is done and the care shown in this service. The linen should be spotless and white and as good as your style of living will warrant—the simple ones for social occasions. They should be perfectly washed and ironed, corners of napkins folded and ironed evenly and placed carefully on the table without wrinkling. This is the true foundation of a perfect table setting.

If the cloth is poorly ironed and awry on the table all the decorations and fine china and silver will never make a perfect table. A soft napkin should always be under the cloth, which saves wear and noise. When this is on and the cloth laid with corners hanging even, then a simple decoration of a flower or two or a growing plant or fern gives a center to work from in setting the individual covers or places.

There are certain rules and lines of beauty which cannot be deviated from in any way. For instance, where a round table is used keep the circle in mind instead of straight lines as in a square or oblong table. Never break this line by placing tea-spoons back of a plate instead of at the side, which is not only a better line, but easier to reach when ready to use.

We really have three forms of service, very formal, informal and compromise, the latter being the very simple service where there are no servants and one or two members of the family assist mother in the service.

Naturally a table is set accordingly. We will take the "compromise" service, which may easily be used where there is only one maid or none. From twenty-four to twenty-seven inches should be allowed for each cover or place. After arranging on the counter, the plates should be placed with an extra plate and cocktail glass. The knife has the cut edge toward the plate and the water glass at the very tip of the knife and always there, with forks and napkin at the left.

There is never any deviation from this, no matter how formal or informal the service. If the latter, the bread and butter plate could also be in place at the tip or just at the left of the fork.

Just to make this table setting seem a little more real we will give a menu for a simple home dinner, or it may be more formal if desired in the serving for a company dinner.

If a home dinner the carving and serving may be done on the table. If more formal the meat is carved in the kitchen or on a side table, and meat and potatoes served on the dinner plate to each guest. Today our table is laid for the cocktail course:

DINNER
Fruit Cocktail
Cream of Celery Soup
Wafers

Roast Leg of Lamb
Casserole of Potatoes
Buttered Peas
Holland House Salad
Spanish Onions and Tomatoes
Cheese Wafers
Ice Cream
Coffee.

Why "Quakers." Members of the Society of Friends are frequently designated by outsiders as "Quakers," but few people probably have any idea that Quakers is a nickname given in scorn. George Fox, the founder of the sect, gives the origin of the name in his journal. "Justice Bent of Derby was the first to call us 'Quakers,' because I made him quake and tremble at the Word of the Lord." This occurred in 1650.

ERUPTION LIKE RINGWORM ON FACE

Covered with Watery Blisters, Itched and Burned Terribly, Little Rest at Night, Cuticura Soap and Ointment Entirely Cured.

Lock Box 35, Mamie, Ia.—"In the spring of 1911 all my little daughter are five years, had a breaking out on her lip and part of her cheek that we took for ringworm. It covered a large ringworm, only it differed in that it was covered with watery blisters that itched and burned terribly, made worse by her scratching it. Then the blisters would break through and let out a watery substance. She was very cross and fretful while she had it and had very little rest at night. When the eruption was at its worst the teacher of the school sent her home and would not allow her to attend until the disfigurement of her face was gone.

"We tried to kill it by applying but without result. It would seem to get better and then break out again. I then wrote and received a sample of Cuticura Soap and Ointment. We washed the sore with the Cuticura Soap and applied the Cuticura Ointment and they gave instant relief, so we bought some more. It gradually grew better. We kept on using Cuticura Soap and Ointment and in three or four months the child was entirely cured." (Signed) Mr. Henry Prins, Oct. 22, 1912.

Cuticura Soap 25c and Cuticura Ointment 50c, are sold everywhere. Liberal sample of each mailed free, with 32-p. Skin Book. Address post-card "Cuticura, Dept. T, Boston." Men who shave and shampoo with Cuticura Soap will find it best for skin and scalp.

September, calm September, with smiling skies of blue! I really don't remember a smoother month than you. You help us in forgetting the summer's care and fretting, the sweltering and sweating, you take us to new ways. There is a relaxation from every roke we wear; there is compensation for every grief we bear; and you're the princely pay master for heat that soaked our raiment, for times when every day meant a new excuse to swear. September, sweet September, you usher Autumn in; the blizzards of December full soon will raze like sin but we have been so roasted, so baked and broiled and toasted, that we can face the boasted old tempest with a grin. If any man should ever complain of cold, by heck, the people ought to sever his headpiece from his neck; an, since last summer's softening, let's hear no more complaining when Boeats is re-igniting when winter comes. September, mild September, you bring of many joys: the fireside and the ember, the laughing girls and boys; and mother with her knitting and dad serenely sitting with skillful fingers fitting the heads on baby's toys.

A WOMAN OF MYSTERY.

Some History Discovered After Sixty Years of Obscurity. In a modern little house on the outskirts of historic old Jamestown, Va., there died recently a very aged woman, who was unknown to the world. She had lived in this house since the older resident could remember, and for over 60 years she had received every month a 10-pound draft on the Bank of England. Her life was spent with her art work, all of her designs and patterns going abroad, most of them to the great mills of England, Scotland and Switzerland.

She was evidently an artist of great ability, for among her effects were found some exceedingly rare sketches and paintings.

A recent letter bearing the signature of Jane Arden Macfarland, revealed the fact that this mysterious little woman was the grandmother of Jane Arden, "the artist and creator of the 'Imperial Patterns,'" who was recently presented to the Queen of England and was married to the only son of Sir Edward Macfarland the Queen of Scotland.

The "Imperial Patterns" were the masterpiece of Jane Arden and were named by Queen Mary who adopted them for her court costumes and pronounced them the most beautiful designs ever created.

In order to encourage and foster this character of art, this entire sheet of designs has been secured and is now being offered by the Gazette at what it costs to distribute them.

The most ordinary patterns of the general class cost 10 cents each. This wonderful collection of 160 designs a 10 cent each would cost more than $16.00, but with six coupons and 6 cents you can secure this entire collection. This is a real opportunity for every woman who loves art and believes in the beautiful.

HUNDREDS OF FIRMS DO NOT COME UNDER COMPENSATION ACT

Approximately Eight Hundred Employers of Four or More Employees have Filed Such Notice.

Approximately eight hundred Wisconsin employers of four or more persons in a common employment have filed notice that they desire not to come under the provisions of the workmen's compensation act. This information comes from the Industrial Commission with the names of those who have filed such notices at Madison. The list covers the situation up to September 20.

Under the new workmen's compensation act every employer of four or more persons in a common employment becomes subject to the act September 1 unless before that date notice to the contrary has been filed. All employers who are not under the compensation act are liable for injury to an employee through the negligence of the employer. The liability comes under the old common law method but those employers who are not under the act cannot plead the defense of assumption of risk, fellow servant or contributory negligence. The damages in such cases are not limited as under the compensation act but are fixed by the law at such sum as will cover loss of wages, medical attendance, physical and mental pain and suffering. In a recent case at Milwaukee the jury gave a verdict for $18,000. In case of death the verdict is not likely to exceed $10,000. Many employers who have decided not to accept the act are expected to come under the law when their present insurance policies expire.

WOMAN A GREAT SUFFERER

Tells How She Was Restored To Health by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Grayville, Ill.—"I was a great sufferer of female complaints for a year and I got nothing that helped me until I began taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I was irregular and had cramps so bad that I had to go to bed. Now I have better health than I have had for years and I cannot speak too highly of your medicine."—Mrs. JESSIE SCHAAK, 413 Main St., Grayville, Ill.

Case of Mrs. Tully.

Chicago, Ill.—"I take pleasure in writing to you for what Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has done for me. I suffered with such awful periodic pains, and had a displacement, and received no benefit from the doctors. I was advised to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and am now as well as ever."—Mrs. WILLIAM TULLY, 2052 Ogden Avenue, Chicago, Ill.

If you have the slightest doubt that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound will help you, write to Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co. (confidential) Lynn, Mass., for advice. Your letter will be opened, read and answered by a woman, and held in strict confidence.

Wanted a Little Hair Left. Upon entering the barber shop: "See!" exclaimed three-year-old Alexis, pointing to a customer, "he hasn't a hair left! The barber cut it all off!" When the bold-headed man smiled at this: "But he's jolly old fellow, isn't he?" concluded the boy. While the knight of the shears was arranging him in the chair: "Don't," cautioned he, "don't cut me bald-headed, whatever you do!"—Exchange.

THE RED BUTTON

By WILL IRWIN
Author of
The City that Was, Etc.

"Ah, a customer!" he said; "business bad at the boarding house? Anything I can do to advertise you? I recommend our A.A. Campaign—cheap and fetching for establishments of your class. How's this for a line: 'Our eggs straight from the hen—our coffee grew on a vine—our boarders stay till they die!'"

"No, thank you," replied Rosalie, dimpling upon him. And then, with the air of one who has no time to waste in any persiflage, "I'm here on business though. Mr. North, I want to borrow a service of your stereograph for a day."

"Me?" inquired Betsy-Barbara.

"You," replied Rosalie Le Grange. She turned back to Tommy North then; and the flush of her dimples disarmed any possible resentment.

"Mr. North, haven't you got five or ten minutes of business somewhere else? Like buying your day's cigars or something. When two ladies want to talk something over, alone, they hate to talk in the hall."

"Oh, certainly," replied Tommy North, rising and reaching for his coat.

"It ain't every young boarder," said Rosalie Le Grange, "who is intelligent enough to let his landlady boss him. Now you be back in just ten minutes by the clock, that's an obedient boy."

Tommy cast one look at Betsy-Barbara as he went out of the door; and Betsy-Barbara smiled as though to reassure him.

Rosalie was coming to the end of her operations. She had reached the point where one may relax caution a little—when speed and despatch are more necessary than concealment. So she proceeded to the heart of the matter, without any of her customary circumlocution.

"Betsy-Barbara Lane," she said, "I believe you'd go for a friend to the place we ain't supposed to mention, except in church. Wouldn't you?"

"I think I'd do almost anything for you, Mrs. Le Grange," said Betsy-Barbara, smiling warmly.

"That's a pretty thing to say, an' I hope you mean it," replied Rosalie. "But I ain't asking for myself. I'm asking for Mrs. Hanska."

"What's happened?" asked Betsy-Barbara, her eyes departing with a rush.

"Constance is perfectly all right," reassured Rosalie. "She was tryin' to read—poor thing—when I left her fifteen minutes ago. But I've got my answer, you would."

"What I'm askin' then," continued Rosalie Le Grange, "may seem only a little thing. But it's important. I can't tell you how important. It may save him you know, Mr. Wade—if you play your cards right."

Betsy-Barbara was on her feet now.

"What is it? Quick!" she asked.

"Not bent' about the bush," replied Rosalie Le Grange. "I want to spend the day in town perfectly outrageous with Mr. Estrella."

In spite of herself, Betsy-Barbara let her pink blond coloring suffice her cheeks. But the color flowed back as her mind leaped from circumstance and rested on a suspicion.

"What has he—he said what he has to do with the Hanska case?"

"Notin' much—himself," said Rosalie, indifferently, "but a great deal to do with solvin' it. An' it's important that he should be delivered at just the right time—as a kind of witness."

A new idea widened Betsy-Barbara's eyes and made soft and wondering the little mouth of her.

"And what have you?" she whispered. "Have you—all this time—and I never suspected!"

"Now don't go cuttin' corners an' guessin'," said Rosalie Le Grange. "I've been doin' my part. Don't ask me any more, please. I'm just bustin' to tell. I'm an old fool with my tongue, an' if I spring the littlest leak in a secret it all comes tumblin' out. Remember what I've told you. First, you can help save Mr. Wade, an' nobody else can. Next, don't ask any questions."

"But Betsy-Barbara, her eyes made her cheeks. But the color flowed back as her mind leaped from circumstance and rested on a suspicion.

"What has he—he said what he has to do with the Hanska case?"

"Notin' much—himself," said Rosalie, indifferently, "but a great deal to do with solvin' it. An' it's important that he should be delivered at just the right time—as a kind of witness."

"Suppose," said Betsy-Barbara—"I beg your pardon, Mrs. Le Grange, but one must watch everything in a time like this—suppose you were working for the other side?"

"In case you ever found that out," said Rosalie, "you know it is all of Goodness me!" and now her emotion was real—"do I look like a traitor or anything of that sort? Haven't I helped Mrs. Hanska every way I could? You're a woman, Betsy-Barbara, an' you know me by this time. Am I that kind?"

"No," replied Betsy-Barbara. "You are not." And with a air of pretty solemnity she swore it.

"If I was a man" said Rosalie Le

Grange, "I could just eat you up when you look that way. Now we're goin' straight to business. It is a quarter of ten. Has Mrs. Hanska any date today?"

"She was going to her lawyer's at eleven o'clock."

"Let her do that; but first you're to see her and tell her that she mustn't come home afterward. Let her go anywhere except home. An' after you've done what I want you to do, you'll find her somewhere to take her dinner at the Hotel Hamblen. That's a respectable out-of-the-way place. Got that?"

"For him?"

"For Mr. Estrella. This is not time to make any bones of anything. He's crazy over you. He has an engagement to you two-thirty. Let him go. He probably won't stay more than fifteen minutes. You're to meet him at the front of the elevator. You'll encourage him—you know. If he asks you to take a walk, which he probably will, you accept, and start him toward the park. This is the point. At five o'clock sharp, you're to have him takin' tea with you in the Park Casino—you know where that is, don't you? An' you're not to leave long before that—you job you understand is to deliver him to me. It's what all this is for, mostly. Then you're to meet Constance—Mrs. Hanska—O I tell you. Wait a minute."

Rosalie paused, fuming, and then, with a smile of triumph, "I've got her pack a suit case and take it with her. You two register at the Hotel Hamblen an' stay there tonight—stay right there until you hear from me. Got all that? Well, repeat it after me."

Betsy-Barbara repeated it slowly.

"But how can I get him to tea if he doesn't ask me?"

Where I was raised, a young man never went to tea without a young woman never went to tea without a young man.

"I've got him in if you have to invite him yourself. I know you, Betsy-Barbara. But don't you be yourself today. Let him make love as hard as he wants—just this once."

The door rattled; Tommy North was back.

"Mr. North," said Rosalie, "I'm borin' your office help for the day. We don't understand now, but you will. Don't you go near my house until tomorrow—you sleep tonight an' break out tomorrow. I can give you a reborn on him."

"All right, take it out of that first week's board you stung me so hard for," laughed Tommy North. Then his eyes sought Betsy-Barbara's with a troubled look. "What's the answer?" he asked.

"There's no answer," said Rosalie Le Grange; "not just at present. Except you'll be glad you did it—an' I'll explain some day myself. Go where you want tonight. Only don't get drunk."

"Oh, I promise," said Tommy, as solemnly as he could, considering that his heart danced. She had taken up the cudgels for him!

Out in the hall Rosalie remarked:

"You can trust quite a lot of people with a secret if you pick the right one. Now we must be gettin' on."

But Betsy-Barbara's curiosity made one final struggle.

"Oh, Mrs. Le Grange, is Mr. Wade to be proved innocent? May I tell Constance that?"

"You can tell her nothing—understand. Just nothing. But probably he is, just the same!"

"When will we know?" asked Betsy-Barbara.

"You may know somethin' tomorrow if you're a good girl an' do just as I've told you."

"From the morning papers?"

"Well, I certainly hope not!" said Rosalie Le Grange.

They parted at the corner. No sooner had Betsy-Barbara taken a Fifth Avenue stage and started on her puzzling journey of intrigue than Rosalie sought the kitchen. She addressed Mrs. Moore, the cook and the waitress, all busy stacking up the soiled dishes.

"I've got a little surprise for you girls," she said. "A gentleman friend of mine who sings in the chorus of the laughing Lassie set me three seats for the present matinee today. But this morning two people I was goin' to take telephone them they couldn't come on account of sickness in the family. Now this Mrs. Le Grange shows up—she's an old friend an' she positively hates music. Just this once, I'm goin' to give you an afternoon off an' let you leave the dishes. Mrs. Le Grange an' I will do them. She's ages, whenever be found her in New York, he used to visit her and receive consolation which was false in detail and yet true in spirit. To the general there are only two ways of looking at a profession—making a man a hell-born fraud or a heaven-sent friend. To him, she was all a friend. There was nothing he told her again and again, that he would not do for her. She believed that; and her beliefs in the heights and depths of humanity seldom went wrong. Toward the schooner Maud she was now driving her taxicab.

The piece of luck was this: at the very moment when the taxicab rounded the corner on Wall Street and the driver began to search for Peter, Captain Baldwin was as pleased as profanity as his convictions allowed. As for the mate, he had no convictions which prevented him from expressing himself to the limits of his vocabulary, over that unlucky accident, that tumble into the bathes, which had sent a newly-signed Italian member of the crew to Bellevue Hospital nursing a broken arm. With all the heaven-condemned things they had to do before the Improper old sow could be cleared in the morning, how the skipper and Alphir (the mate inquired of the bright boy) were they going to dig up another sailor to satisfy the port regulations? The skipper, braiding rope, returned no answer, for answer there was none.

CHAPTER XVII.
The Last Seance.

FORTUNATELY for her plans, only three hours earlier had Rosalie's regular boarders even come home to luncheon—Constance, Betsy-Barbara, and Professor Noll. Of these, two were disposed of for the day. Professor Noll, reporting in the dining-room at twelve-thirty sharp—regular meals at regular hours was a canon of the Noll Scientific Plan—found three strangers already placed and eating. Two young men, powerful and slow-moving, sat at either side of the hostess. At the other end of the table, in Miss Hardin's accustomed seat, was a manly woman, gray-haired but with a smile of mirth and eye.

"Mr. Kennedy, Mrs. Hunter—Mrs. Leary—I want to introduce Professor Noll. The professor is one of my regular boarders. This lady and these gentlemen are transients; they'll be with us just a few days," said Rosalie Le Grange. The two men nodded and fell to their luncheon, while they consumed vast quantities.

"Mrs. Leary," pursued Rosalie Le Grange, "has got some foreign views I'm sure you'd like to see. You won't be droppin' in this afternoon, will you?"

"No," said Professor Noll, "I'm making up my paper today. I won't get home until just before my dinner. My habit," he added idly, "is to read Mrs. Leary's 'Always Ready for Company'.

"A professional matinee!" cried the cook. "What's that?"

"Are they right down-stairs?" asked the waitress.

"I must put on my brown dress," mourned Mrs. Moore.

"Well, you'll have to hurry if you're going to floss up," said Rosalie. "The theater is away up-town and the curtain goes up at two-thirty sharp, an' it's past one now." Rosalie had looked out for these details when she bought the seats at down-town agency. "Worthwith, aprons came on and smiles came on as the below-suspirs inhabitants of Madame Le Grange's select boarding-house scurried to their finery.

They were gone at length, after an uncomfortable period, during which Rosalie twice betrayed her nervousness by knocking at their doors and reminding them that the time was short. Another pause. The chimes of the Metropolitan Tower rang the hour of one. At the first stroke, Rosalie, as one who had been in action ran down the basement and opened the back door. Inspector Martin McGee, dressed in plain clothes and carrying a small bag, was waiting outside.

"All set?" he asked under his breath.

"Everything's ready," replied Rosalie as she led the way across the basement.

But Inspector McGee stopped her at the stairway.

"Say, it's all right to let you have your head and do things your own way. I've made a hundred buck for other duty at one o'clock, just as you told me. But I'm runnin' risks when I take your word that you'll deliver this Estrella when we want him—or I would be, if it was anybody but you. Why can't you tell me?"

TO BE CONTINUED.

Surely the Limit.

"Some kinds of dishonesty are almost unbelievable," says the Philosopher of Folly. "Cheating at solitaire is a common form. But I know a man who gives himself short change at his own store."

The Help Needed By Excessive Drinkers

TORTURES PREVENTED BY THE NEAL TREATMENT

How "Winning Fights" Against the Drink Habit Are Waged at the Neal Institute

It was a recent afternoon gathering of club women that a lady, prominent in church mission work, declared: "For the first time in my life I began to realize what it means for the victim of drink to try to quit. I have never attended alcoholique liquor, but my doctor took tea and coffee away from me a few weeks ago. The fight I am having must be something like that which the excessive drinker experiences when he tries to stop liquor. My heart goes out today, as it never did before, in sympathy for the drinker who is trying to quit. I can now appreciate the suffering he must endure."

Excessive drinkers rarely stop of their own accord. They try

"Yes," promptly replied the youngster. "Ma she hit pa with a pitcher."
